SOCIAL CORNER

Feb. 22, 1922, was presented and adopted.

A large schooner came in here from Nantucket, ice-covered, Thursday. The fishing boats here have made but few skirts than their grandfaughters do trips. The Elsie shirted its catch by freight this week to New York.

Many of the freight cars going westward have a heavy coating of snow on their roofs.

NORTH DAKOTA SPEAKS OUT IN MEETING.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I have felt greatly interested in the Social Cor-ner, and have formed some pleasant friendships among its members. I had a pleasant letter from Samantha last week, and several others have written me very bright, newsy letters from time to time. I had not heard from Thy Adley lately, but at one time she wrote several very pleasant letters. I felt very sorry to hear of her death.

I have felt disappointed in the Corner lately and with the editor's permission. I am going to "talk right out in meeting." When I open The Bulletin, I always look first at the Social Corner and many times in the last year I won-dered what the much talked about vis-itor from Mars would think if he could itor from Mars would think if he could see it. I stlink he could only suppose that the staters lie awake nights thinking up some way to combine indigestible eating materials for the table, spending their days in practicing their mixing and baking, and filling the precious columns of The Bulletin with the recipes until it is practically a cook book.

One sister says that if we will learn to use only one new recipe a week, at the end of the year we shall have first new recipes learned. But why, O, Sister, should any one want to clutter up their mind and waste the precious hours with learning fifty new recipes, when we all have good cook books, and know how to use them?

I have been a member of a social circular cooks.

how to use them?

I have been a member of a social cir-cle in several family papers, and think all the contributors enjoyed the letters very much. We each carried our prob-

Dear Editor and Members of The Con

ner: I wish to thank the Corner Membe for the nice calendar. first train at the exposition last fall makes one think of the great changes and improvements in the past century. The of coal, barrels to hold water, and tall smokestack is much different from the modern locomotive. It was called the De Witt Clinton, named for New York's seventh governor. The De Witt Clinton was built by the West Point foundry, New York, in 1851. It was taken from as printed on each page, accompanied by the autocraph and photo of the writer. Then again what an unheaval i would make at the Bulletin office if each meter sent in a letter fhe same week of course our Social Corner editor would stand his ground and see each one of us seedly due recognition, even to the expectived due recognition, even to the expective of a modern lecomotive, and a modern Pacific locomotive longer than the entire De Witt Clinton trails. than the entire De Witt Clinton train.
The steam boat, the electric cars and automobile are much quicker than the old ox cart or the faithful horse, al-though not always as safe. The tele-graph, telephone and submarine telegraphic cable keep one in touch with all places far or near. The printing press needs only a mention to set one thinking of its tremendous use in the world. The typewriter, adding machines, calculating machines, cash reg-ister, etc., are great labor savers. It is interesting to note the invention of the sewing machines which were contri-vances to imitate mechanically the movements of the hands in sewing. In the machines of Thomas Stone and James Henderson in 1804 there were two pair of pincers, one of which seized the needle above and the other below the cloth on either side alternately. Many improvements have since been made, Then the many madern uses of elec-tricity, the many machines on the farm including mowers, tractors, cream sep-arators, milking machines, the many large factories, sky scrapes buildings and many other things too numreous to mention show that man's mind and hand
